DIVERSITY OF VIEWS

What is Said of the Situation in North Carolina.

POPULISTS WANT BRYAN PROVED

Coming Meeting of the Democratic State Committee.

PROSPECTS OF A DEAL

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. RALEIGH, N. C., July 28, 1896. Politically speaking, things are changing so rapidly and so strangely in this state that the most practiced heads cannot keep up with the movements. Perhaps an excellent way to show the drift will be to give impressions picked up in the course of nterviews with leaders of all three parties -republican, democratic, populist. James H. Young, colored, member repubhas not the least idea that there will be any McKinley electoral ticket at all in North Carolina, but expects to ree two silver tickets. Ex-Congressman John Nichols, on the other hand, says most positively there will be a McKinley ticket, and adds that he knows whereof he speaks. S. Otto Wilson, than whom no populist in the state stands nearer to Senator and State Chairman Marion Butler, says it Bryan ticket and a democratic Bryan tick-et. He adds that he desires to renew his statement, made three weeks ago, that the populists will cast the electoral vote of the This must mean one thing only-that the populists count on getting the great mass of the republicans to vote for their Bryan and Watson electoral ticket. Delegates who returned yesterday from the national populist convention said quite frankly they could not see how Watson's nomination helped Bryan. One of these delegates said: "We populists in North Carolina will certainly not vote for Sewall. He will have to be taken down. We found out at St. Louis that while the Nebraska populists literally idolize Bryan, those in Maine have no use for Sewall. Southern populists will other populists say they want nothing which comes out of New England; that this fight for silver is between the west and the south and the east; that it is pure-ly sectional so far as politics are concern-ed, and that it is the eastern money influence they are battling against. And, indeed there are some democrats who say nearly as much, so far as the fight against the eastern money influence is concerned. A democratic ex-chairman of much prom rence was asked the direct question, "How many democrats in this state will not vote for Bryan?" and replied, "Perhaps 2,500 is a close figure."

He was then asked how many would have declined to vote for a gold man had one been nominated. His reply was: "At the been nominated. His reply was: "At the very least 25,000. In fact, the party would, in such a case, have literally gone to pieces in the state, nationally speaking. It would not have been worth the while to make a State Democratic Chairman J. H. Pou was asked his opinion of the prospects of success of his party in the state, and said he thought the party had a good fighting chance. It is no walk-over, and, of course, he knows that fact. But the democrats are sanguine and in fine spirits. Democratic State Committee Meeting.

When the democratic state committee meets here on the 30th instant, Chairman Pou will retire and Clement Manly will succeed him. Manly lives at Winston, the home of Cyrus B. Watson, the nominee for governor, and it is the latter's particular desire that he shall be chairman. It is the lesire of Watson that the campaign shall republican nominee for governor, to meet him in joint discussion during the cam-paign. Russell says he is ready to do this in the western countles, but not in the Senator Butler now, as at any time these four years past, controls the populist party.

The attempted revolt against him has falled. His generalship at St. Louis was the crowning act. Senator Pritchard is today as absolutely the head of the republican party. State Chairman Holton's power is merely nominal. It is Butler who discusses with Pritchard the things to be done by the respective parties.

The republican committee meeting, early in August, is looked forward to with marked interest, but far more important is the popuinterest, but far more important is the populist state convention. The latter will really settle the question whether the party shall co-operate with the republicans or shall keep in the middle of the road, or shall co-operate with democrats. As Butler wills, so it will be. No man can say at this moment just what will be done. Not even Senator Butler knows. But powerful influences will be brought to bear and the corrected by be brought to bear, and the cry "Anything to beat the democrats" will again be raised.

There are democrats who swear they rever will vote for Tom Watson. They are never will vote for Tom Watson. They are some who swear they will not even vote for Bryan if Sewall is forced to withdraw; in other words, that they will never vote for a populist. Others say they will vote for Coxey and Debs if the national committee so orders. There are yet others who raise the cry "Anything to beat the republicans!" Then some populists step forward and say the cry "Anything to beat the republicans!"
Then some populists step forward and say
"Why not vote for W. A. Guthrie, whom we intend to nominate for governor?" Democrats demur and say they have put up a straight and sincere silver man for governor, a man who declared, like Bryan, that he was going for free silver wherever he found it.

The attitude of the republican papers is odd, for they make hardly any reference to the currency question. There is mild praise of McKinley, but the silver business is handled with gloves. These papers are mild-mannered to the last degree. The tariff appears to cut no figure at all. It is not worth while even to attempt to conceal the fact that in all North Carolina there is only one issue—free silver.

Populists' View of Bryan. People constantly ask what the rural populists think of Bryan. One, named Bagvell, a member of the legislature, was asked by The Star correspondent, and replied: "I'll tell you what our party thinks of him. We are going to make him prove what he is. He must be strictly with us before we support him. He seems to be a good man, but is in mighty bad company."

When a democrat of prominence was told of what Bagwell said he remarked: "This is what can people said for chester results." what bagwell said he remarked: "This is what our people get for chasing populists." It was a common remark of many democrats last week, after the nomination of Watson, that they hoped the populists would nominate their own man and not Bryan for President.

Bryan for President.

Populists today declared they would not divide the electoral ticket with the republicans. It is rumored, but the accuracy of the rumor cannot be ascertained, that the republicans offered to divide, giving the republicans are electors and taking five. populists six electors and taking five. An Alleged Populist Offer.

There is another rumor, the truth of which cannot as yet be ascertained, that at the meeting of the democratic state comnittee on the 30th the populists will submit a proposition looking to a division of the electoral vote. But while the executive committee of the populists has very great scope and power, the democrats do business of this kind in convention, and it is denied that the committee has any right to make a deal, even should it desire to do such a thing. Senator Butler said at St. Louis that Bryan would carry North Carolina; that there would be fusion, and that everything would come out all right. But did not say with which party there would be fusion. As to county and legislative fusion, the republicans and populists seem to have already made arrangements in at least two-thirds of the counties.

There is a queer situation of affairs in this congressional district. E. A. Johnthis congressional district. E. A. Johnson, colored, is the chairman of the republican district committee. He says: "In May we nominated N. C. English for Congress, as the 'fusion' candidate. There was an understanding that he was to take the place of Congressman Stroud, but we had no agreement of the kind with the populists. We indorsed English as our preference. If the populists do not nomirate English I suppose he will be the candidate anyhow, and make the run. If he does not some one else will. The chances are good for republican success in the district. English is a republican-populist. He writes me, 'I will be the standard bearer of the republicans and populists in the coming campaign.' But yet he has not formally notified us."

The fact is English is desirous of holding on to this odd nomination until he can recrtain whether he can get the populists' nomination for state superintendent can certain whether he can get the populists' nomination for state superintendent of public instruction. That is what exCongressman Nichols says plainly. Congressman Stroud certainly expects to get the populist renomination for Congress, but is at the same time very uneasy as to the turn matters may take. His main fear is of E. W. Pou, the democratic nominee.

The democratic state campaign opens August 4. It is not known when the republican campaign will begin. The populists will, of course, take no steps until after their state convention, August 13.

Regular Meetings of the Federation of Labor and Building Trades Council.

Boycotts on theMetropolitan Railroad and on the Brewers Discussed

The regular weekly meeting of the Federation of Labor was held last evening, President James F. McHugh presided and Mr. C. A. Maidens was secretary. Delegates from thirty-three unions responded to the roll call. Credentials were received for delegates from the Stone Cutters' Association and the delegates were seated.

President McHugh announced the following committees for the ensuing term: Legislation-E. M. Blake, W. H. Stickele, J. S. Nesbith, Wm. Krieton, H. S. Streb. Propaganda-Geo. Suter, W. H. Wilder, J.

bers of organized labor were active in pushing the boycott. The electrotypers in-dersed the boycott and placed a fine of $15 on members violating the same. It will cost a stonecutter or painter $2 for failure to boycott.

The rest of the session was taken up in the discussion of a motion to lift the boycott from the brewery combine. By a very large majority it was decided that the right of organization had been denied by the combine, and until that right is rec-ognized by them the Federation would continue to let Carry's and Heurich's beer

Building Trades Council. At the meeting last night of the Building Trades Council the conditions under which the power house is being constructed at Lakeland for the Washington and Baltimore electric railroad were considered. After the report had been submitted the secretary of the council was instructed to notify all organizations represented in the body of the conditions required by the contractor for the work, and the organizations represented in the Building Trades Council will be requested to formally protest to the management of the road against the employment of men at reduced wages and long hours. The members of the organizations represented in the council will also be requested not to work upon the job until it is made "fair." The following committee on Labor day was appointed: Messrs. J. M. Boyce, D. Suilivan, R. F. Metzell, J. Armstrong and Robert Murray.

Columbia Typographical Union Holding Its Annual Election. The annual election of officers of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, for the ensuing year and for four delegates to the biennial convention of the International Typographical Union, which meets at Colorado Springs, Col., in October next, began this afternoon at 2 o'clock in each of the union offices in the city, and the polls will be kept open until late this after-There has been the most intense excite ment among the printers of Washington for nearly two months in reference to the matter, especially in regard to choice of delegates to the I. T. U. convention. For the four delegateships there are no less than seventeen candidates, and all those who have been mentioned are considered by their friends as in every way worthy of the honor they are seeking. The names of the several candidates for each position lave already been published in The Star. Most of the questions that will come be-short of the questions that will come be-fore the convention have already been stated in The Star, but in addition there will be the subject of the election of a suc-cessor to the present president of the I. T. U., who has held the office for three terms, which many of the printers think plenty long enough. Other matters to be dis-cussed by the delegates to the body will be how to provide printers out of employ-ment with work, the management of the printers' home at Colorado Springs, and the introduction of type-setting machines. Until the last two or three days there were four candidates for the office of president of the local union, but one has withdrawn, and those still in the field are Meisrs. R. B. Smythe, John D. Kehoe and Thomas A. Bynum. The result of the election will not be known until after the returns are made to the office of the secre-tary of Columbia Union tonight.

Pleasant Affair.
